A Man with a Vision

For many years, my wife, and some special friends, tossed around the idea of finding a place in the Southwest which could offer affordable living plus great weather. The perfect place where you could fly in for a quick weekend escape and leave on a whim, knowing your property would be taken care of in your absence.

In the fall of 2005, I traveled through Sedona, Arizona and here I experienced some of the most beautiful scenery in the Southwest. Stunning evening sunsets against the natural Red Rock backdrops were breathtaking. The sense of peace and harmony was unmatched plus the close proximity of the 16 mile gorge of the Oak Creek Canyon was a deciding factor. This, could be the perfect location to fulfill this dream.

Pine Terrace Apartments, peaked my interest and offered what we had been searching for. The convenience of Uptown living with unlimited recreational opportunities, plus nearby hiking and biking trails. At the end of the day nearby Spas offered a great place to kick back and unwind. And hopefully one would not be too tired after a full day of hiking to meander through the many Uptown galleries and shops along with the choice of a large selection of amazing restaurants.

Pine Terrace definitely offered a lot of potential, but the true excitement of this project was the added bonus of building this dream among the spectacular Red Rock and mountain vistas of Uptown Sedona. After leaving Sedona and driving West, my interest in the property seemed to rise, and I found myself continually thinking of Pine Terrace, soon realizing it was a unique opportunity. It was time to return to Sedona and begin this special project.

Pine Terrace Condominium is an accumulated reflection of my experience through 26 years of General Home Construction known as Keele Construction. Bill states, "Quality has been my consistent trademark, the style and choice of finishes reflects my personality, and the setting is related to my roots in the mountains of the West." My role in the home building business has been an interesting combination of listening to clients wants and needs then, creating their dream.

This time, Pine Terrace was going to be my ideal project, built with all the passion I have always put into my client's projects. Upon purchasing the property, this led to the demolition of the old units to make room for the new Pine Terrace Condominiums. My goal was to create a natural living environment with quality construction, using the finest appointments hand picked by myself. The ultimate intent was to offer the completed project at an affordable price to potential buyers.

I invite you to come view Pine Terrace Condominiums and be a part of my dream. Walk the landscaped grounds, breathe the fresh air and do not miss the tremendous stargazing opportunities from your own private backyard patio. I am sure once you have visited, you will agree this well thought out development is the perfect place to call home.
